COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

BE IT KNOWN, that whereas Nathan Haskell Dole, Henry H. Harper, Charles E. Hurd, J. Arnold Farrer, William D. T. Trefry, John Paul Bocock, and W. P. Trent have associated themselves with the intention of forming a corporation under the name of THE BIBLIOPHILE SOCIETY, for the purpose of the study and promotion of the arts pertaining to fine book making and illustration, and to the occasional publication of specially designed and illustrated books for distribution among its members at a minimum cost of production, and have complied with the provisions of the statutes of this Commonwealth in such cases made and provided, as appears from the certificate of the President, Treasurer, and Directors of said corporation, duly approved by the Commissioner of Corporations, and recorded in this office:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, William M. Olin, Secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, do hereby certify that said Nathan Haskell Dole, Henry H. Harper, Charles E. Hurd, J. Arnold Farrer, William D. T. Trefry, John Paul Bocock, and W. P. Trent, their associates and successors, are legally organized and established as and are hereby made an existing corporation under the name of THE BIBLIOPHILE SOCIETY, with the powers, rights, and privileges, and subject to the limitations, duties, and restrictions which by law appertain thereto.

WITNESS my official signature hereunto subscribed, and the seal of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts hereunto affixed, this fifth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and one.

(Signed)

WM. M. OLIN,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

REPORT OF THE COUNCIL

REPORT OF THE COUNCIL

As we are now approaching the mile-post marking the twenty-fifth anniversary of the birth of The Bibliophile Society the Council deems it a fitting occasion on which to felicitate the members and also to express its gratitude for their loyal co-operation in sustaining the ideals and furthering the usefulness of our Society. This support has been manifested not only through a prompt and generous response in the way of subscriptions for the publications, but also by numerous letters containing helpful suggestions and expressions of appreciation. The librarian of one of the large public libraries writes: "We have found in the Bibliophile publications much valuable material not otherwise obtainable — literary and historical matter of value to students, who, I daresay, appreciate the books as much for their genuine usefulness as 'collectors' are disposed to prize them for their scarcity, their clear type, and the general excellence of their make-up."

In reviewing the publication work of the past year the Council feels justified in calling attention to the importance of the two links added to the chain of Bibliophile issues, viz., the volume entitled Dickens in Cartoon and Caricature and the two unpublished plays by Washington Irving. Through a miscalculation of the printers the number of copies of the Dickens volume fell a little short of the number subscribed for by members, and singularly enough, in the process of delivery the transportation companies aggravated our predicament by losing four copies. Two of the several deficiencies have already been made up by purchases, but several others still remain unsatisfied, and any member knowing of a copy of this work for sale may confer a favor by notifying the Society. This volume has attracted much favorable comment from "Dickensians," and taking into consideration the vast number of this cult now extant, it does not seem likely that this important item of Dickensiana is likely ever to go "begging" in the auction room. While Irving's fame is less world-wide than that of Dickens, yet as the father of American classic literature, and the author of much that has not been surpassed either in quality or in popularity, any item of importance by his pen must always be in demand with American readers, collectors and Historical Societies.

In determining the value of material for publication the policy of the Council is to give more consideration to the literary quality and usefulness of matter than to the question of rarity; for it sometimes happens that the exceeding scarcity of a printed book is to be accounted for by the fact that the need for it is no less limited than its circulation. It is becoming increasingly difficult to find unpublished manuscripts worth preserving in print, though occasionally an item of merit comes to light, after having been concealed from the public eye by one or more generations of owners who were either unaware of its importance or else felt that its value and uniqueness would be impaired by printing it. In the past we have been fortunate in securing the lion's share of such items, and it is to be hoped that the future will be no less propitious.

We are now engaged in preparing a fine

English edition of the epistles of Pliny, written in the latter part of the first century A.D. It is perhaps safe to say that among all the writers of ancient times there is not a name more secure from oblivion than that of Pliny Secundus — or Pliny the younger, as he was known. As a writer he was never trite, never verbose, seldom whimsical, and always entertaining. His time and his fortune were devoted to the happiness of his family, the interests of his friends, the study of literature, the advancement of learning, and the elevation of his country. In short, he was what we would consider a great, intellectual, high-minded man, of widely diversified talents, and of twentieth century human qualities. He would have been an outstanding ornament to any age, and his epistles, which for the most part assume the importance of essays, have been models of literary composition through all the centuries from the first to the twentieth. In addition to the elegant style there is in nearly every epistle an obvious raison d'être — some useful example or intellectual stimulant that the reader unconsciously absorbs. In other words, a pleasing diversion that is mentally profitable. The editorial supervision of this important undertaking is in the hands of Clifford H. Moore, Professor of Classic Literature in Harvard University.

It was a custom with the ancients — notably the great poets — to contemplate their labors and their future fame with satisfaction, — oftentimes with marked exultation. (Indeed self-satisfaction was the chief emolument they derived from their genius). And their confident prophecy that their names would outlast the contemporary monuments of brass and marble has in many cases been fulfilled. In view of these illustrious precedents it may be pardonable to remark that through its accomplishments in the past quarter of a century The Bibliophile Society has grounded its name upon an imperishable foundation. An individual who justly earns undying fame in literature, art, science, or in any other pursuit, must in due course of time pass from our midst, but in proportion as he has benefitted humanity his labors become indestructible and reflect perpetual lustre upon his name. Likewise if in the course of human events our organization should discontinue its activities its past achievements must inevitably hold an honored place for ages to come; and its roster of members will reveal to future generations the names of the greater part of the well-known book-lovers and book-collectors of the present age. Its publications form a distinctive unit in the libraries of aesthetic bibliophiles in nearly every state in the Union, as well as in thirteen of the great public libraries and college libraries of the country.

In printing the vast wealth of hitherto unpublished literary matter comprised in the Bibliophile issues of the past twenty-five years the Society has not only preserved history, but it has made history—a history that is firmly interwoven with America's early twentieth century achievements in bookmaking. The Bibliophile Society has therefore become a fixed institution, performing a definite and useful service for which there is an unceasing demand; and although the members who co-operate in making this service possible are the initial beneficiaries, yet as the books gradually filter into wider channels of circulation, either by inheritance or through the auction room, their benefits become more universal.

THE COUNCIL

February 16, 1925

HENRY CABOT LODGE

(1850-1924)

HENRY CABOT LODGE

(1850-1924)

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge served continuously on the Council of The Bibliophile Society for twenty-three years, having been elected to that body the second year after the Society was organized in February, 1901. Naturally, his duties in Washington prevented him from regularly attending the business meetings, but he always manifested a keen interest in the purposes of the Society and was ever ready to render the valuable service for which his wide culture and his knowledge of literature so eminently fitted him. Among his notable contributions to our volumes were the chapter containing the fourteenth Ode of the Fourth Book of Horace and his Introduction to the André Journal, the latter especially characteristic of his scholarly treatment of historical matters.

He was born on Beacon Hill, Boston, May 12, 1850, and entered Harvard University when he was sixteen. After his graduation and marriage in 1871, he studied Law and also specialized in History, in which in 1875 he received the degree of Ph.D. During this time he also edited The North American Review and after being admitted to the Bar in 1876 he was appointed lecturer on American history at Harvard University, serving in this capacity for three years, at the expiration of which period he became editor of The International Review.

These desultory occupations soon gave way to constructive historical writing. He had already written and edited the Life and Letters of George Cabot, and in 1881 came his "Short History of the English Colonies in America." This was followed by biographies of Alexander Hamilton, Daniel Webster, and George Washington; also by volumes of his collected essays and studies, and by his History of Boston. In 1880 and 1881 he entered politics and was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives, where he made such an excellent record that he was sent to Congress for three successive terms. In 1893 he took his place in the Senate, where he became the recognized leader of the Republican party and was chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, a position which gave him dominating influence in many international questions. During the thirty-one years of his senatorship the story of his life is so intimately entwined with the history of our country that to treat of it adequately would require a volume.

In spite of the constant and exacting labors required by his attendance in the Senate he found time to continue his literary and historical productions, and he edited the Complete Works of Alexander Hamilton, in nine volumes; he also published "Certain Accepted Heroes and other Essays in Literature and Politics," and two years later (in 1889) he issued his Story of the Revolution in two volumes and The Story of the Spanish War, followed by two collections of Essays, "A Fighting Frigate" and "A Frontier Town." Among his other works were One Hundred Years of Peace, which came out in 1913, just before the World War broke out, and the same year, a volume of autobiography, entitled "Early Memories," followed two years later by another volume of Essays entitled "Democracy of the Constitution," and in 1921 by his story of the Senate.

He was a member of the Alaskan Boundary Commission, Commissioner Plenipotentiary at the International Conference on the Limitation of Armaments, Regent of the Smithsonian Institution, Trustee of the Boston Athenaeum, President of the Massachusetts Historical Society, President of the Harvard Alumni Association and an Overseer of Harvard University.

The Bibliophile Society is rightly proud to have had so long the distinction of counting him among its members and prominent in its Council.

If I may be permitted, in conclusion, to strike a personal note I should like to record here the fact that, when I first met Senator Lodge in 1892, all the prejudices I had conceived as a Southerner against him on account of his famous Force Bill, were at once dissipated by his kindly reception of a beginner in studies of which he was already master. It was not my good fortune to see much of him or to be in frequent correspondence with him, but for some six years in the nineties I was in occasional contact with him, and I always had reason to admire his dignified yet not uncordial courtesy. What the younger generation of readers and scholars think of his Life of Washington, now some thirty-six years before the public, I do not know, but I well remember how deeply it impressed me when I read it shortly after it was issued, and the conviction that it is a remarkably able biography, especially notable for its fine Americanism, has not left me. Yet it is often from trifles rather than from larger things that one is best able to judge a man. Here is a trifle that may help the future biographer of Lodge in elucidating the latter's character. It so happened that I wrote a short review of his Story of the American Revolution, 1898, and that with academic precision I commented on the fact that the book contained a number of split infinitives. I have among my papers a note from Mr. Lodge stating that the split infinitive was abhorrent to him, and asking for a list of such slips of the kind as I had discovered. Does not this note from so busy a man serve as an indication of the painstaking study he must have given the problems he confronted?

REPORTS OF THE SECRETARY AND
THE TREASURER

SECRETARY'S REPORT

The twenty-fourth annual meeting of The Bibliophile Society was held at rooms 833-4 Little Building, Boston, on February 7, 1925. The Treasurer's Report was read and approved, after which the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Professor William P. Trent; Vice-president, Edward C. Robinson; Treasurer, Henry H. Harper; Secretary, J. Arnold Farrer. The following were chosen to serve on the Council for one year: Professor William P. Trent, Edward C. Robinson, Henry H. Harper, Edwin F. Edgett, J. Arnold Farrer, and Hanson H. Webster. At a meeting of the Council held after the adjournment of the annual meeting, all vacancies in the membership were filled from the waiting-list.

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS OF THE BIBLIOPHILE SOCIETY

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS OF THE BIBLIOPHILE SOCIETY

ARTICLE I

NAME AND OBJECT

SECTION 1. This Society shall be called The Bibliophile Society.

SECT. 2. Its object shall be the study and promotion of the arts pertaining to fine book-making and illustrating, and the occasional publication of specially designed and illustrated books, for distribution among its members at a minimum cost of production.

ARTICLE II

ORIGIN AND MEMBERSHIP

SECT. 1. This Society is founded by Nathan Haskell Dole, Charles E. Hurd, William D. T. Trefry, Henry H. Harper, J. Arnold Farrer, W. P. Trent, and John Paul Bocock who constitute themselves its members, together with others who may be elected as hereinafter provided.

ARTICLE III

MEETINGS

SECT. 1. Annual meetings of The Bibliophile Society shall be held in Boston, Mass., on the first Tuesday in January of each year, and five (5) members shall constitute a quorum at all meetings of the Society.

ARTICLE IV

GOVERNMENT

SECT. 1. The government and management of this Society is entrusted to a Council, composed of seven of its members, who shall exercise the usual powers of a Board of Directors, in accordance with the Act under which the Society is incorporated.

SECT. 2. The Directors named on the certificate of incorporation shall hold office until their successors shall be elected. There shall be held an annual meeting of the Council on the first Tuesday in January of each year, for the purpose of transacting such business as may come before the Society. At any such meeting, any officer or director may be removed from office by a majority vote of the entire Council.

SECT. 3. Members to fill vacancies in the Council in the interim between any two regular annual meetings, may be appointed by the President. They shall hold office until a successor is elected.

SECT. 4. The officers of this Society shall consist of a President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer. The Council shall be chosen annually by the members. The Secretary and Treasurer shall be chosen by the members of the Society.

ARTICLE V

THE COUNCIL

SECT. 1. The Council shall elect annually from its own number a President and Vice-President of the Society, who shall hold office until their successors are elected.

SECT. 2. The Council shall have power to admit, by ballot, candidates for membership in the Society. Two ballots cast in the negative shall exclude any candidate.

SECT. 3. The Council shall have power to expel or suspend any member of the Society by a majority vote, after giving one month's previous notice in writing to such member, setting forth cause for expulsion.

SECT. 4. If any member shall pass three successive publications of the Society, such failure to subscribe for the works issued shall be construed as an implied lack of interest in the Society, and such member may be dropped from the rolls at the discretion of the Council.

SECT. 5. The Council shall have power to make rules for its own government.

ARTICLE VI

THE PRESIDENT

SECT. 1. The President shall preside at the meetings of the Society or of the Council, and in his absence the Vice-President shall preside.

ARTICLE VII

THE TREASURER

SECT. 1. The Treasurer shall collect all initiation fees, and shall keep the accounts of the Society. It shall be his duty to collect all moneys due the Society, and to render at each annual meeting a statement showing the receipt and expenditure of such; and he shall have the custody of the funds and accounts of the Society, and sign all checks, acceptances, and other obligations issued by the Society.

ARTICLE VIII

THE SECRETARY

SECT. 1. The Secretary shall give notice of all annual meetings of the Society seven days before date of meeting, and shall keep an accurate record of the proceedings of such meetings.

ARTICLE IX

MEMBERSHIP

SECT. 1. Application for membership must be submitted to the Society in writing, and passed upon by the Council.

SECT. 2. The membership of this Society shall be limited to five hundred members, to which no one not having attained majority shall be eligible, and it is desired to include in the membership only representative people who are interested in limited publications and rare books, from the standpoint of their true literary and artistic worth; the Society reserving the right to reject any application for membership without assigning cause.

SECT. 3. No act or deed of any officer, member, board of selection, or committee of this Society shall bind any individual member thereof to any obligation without his (or her) voluntary acquiescence in writing addressed to the Society, and in such case the amount of the obligation shall be stipulated.

ARTICLE X

ENTRANCE FEE

SECT. 1. The entrance fee for each member shall be $10.00. There shall be an annual assessment, not exceeding ten dollars, to defray the cost of issuing the Year Book and other incidental expenses. If payment of the entrance fee is not made within thirty days after the election of a member, the membership may be declared void by the Council.

ARTICLE XI

MEETINGS OF THE COUNCIL

SECT. 1. The Council may meet at such time and place as it may elect.

SECT. 2. A majority of the Council shall constitute a quorum.

ARTICLE XII

COMMITTEES

SECT. 1. The Council shall in itself constitute a committee of selection, whose duty it shall be to determine upon the advisability of publishing such works or edition of works as may be recommended to the Society. A majority vote shall govern in all cases.

ARTICLE XIII

PUBLICATIONS

SECT. 1. The Society solicits the coöperation of its members in suggesting and recommending suitable works for publication. All such suggestions and recommendations shall be submitted to the Council, who will print a list of the most desirable works under consideration, a copy of which list shall be mailed to each member of the Society, with the request that all members shall indicate their preference of one from among the works suggested (it being understood that such act shall in no case be construed as an obligation upon the part of the member to subscribe for a copy of such work), and the work receiving the largest number of votes shall be taken under advisement by the Council, whose duty it shall be to ascertain the cost of production, and to report to all members of the Society the name, number of volumes, terms of subscription, and price of such work; then, if within thirty days the Society shall receive a sufficient number of membership subscriptions to justify the work will be undertaken.

SECT. 2. In no case may the total number of copies of any edition issued exceed the enrolled membership of the Society, which shall be limited to five hundred.

SECT. 3. No subscription may be received for any publication of the Society later than six months following the announcement of such publication except by special permission of the Council, who may at their discretion declare an edition closed within thirty days from the date of announcement.

SECT. 4. In no case shall a copy of any publication issued by this Society be offered for sale to a non-member, except by special authorization by the Council.

SECT. 5. Any member failing to pay an obligation within sixty days after having been notified in writing of the same, shall be subject to expulsion from the membership at the discretion of the Council.

ARTICLE XIV

CONSTRUCTION OF CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS, AND PROVISION FOR SUCH OTHER AND FURTHER
RULES AND REGULATIONS AS ARE NOT PROVIDED FOR IN SAME

SECT. 1. In respect to all questions of construction of the constitution and by-laws, the decision of the Council shall control and be binding.

SECT. 2. The Council shall make such other and further rules and regulations for the government of the Society as in their judgment are required.
